Ensuring the Lawfulness of Data Protection, Use of Cookies

CHAPTER III

ENSURING THE LAWFULNESS OF DATA PROTECTION

1. Data processing based on the consent of the data subject

- If the Company wishes to carry out data processing based on consent, then the consent of the data subject to the processing of his personal data must be requested in a data request form with the content and information specified in the privacy policy.
- It is also considered consent, if the data subject checks the appropriate box while viewing the website of the Company, performs relevant technical settings while using services related to the information society, or any other statement or action, which in the given context, clearly indicates the consent of the data subject to the processing of his personal data. Therefore, remaining silent, pre-checking of boxes, or not taking action shall not be considered consent.
- Such consent shall cover all data processing activities performed for the same purpose or purposes. If the data processing serves multiple purposes at the same time, then the consent shall cover all purposes of data processing.
- If the data subject's consent is given in the context of a written declaration which also concerns other matters - e.g. concluding sales or service contracts - the request for consent shall be presented in a manner which is clearly distinguishable from the other matters, in an intelligible and easily accessible form, using clear and plain language. Any part of such a declaration by the data subject which constitutes an infringement of the Regulation shall not be binding.
- The Company shall not stipulate the conclusion or performance of contracts with the provision of giving consent to the processing of personal data that are not necessary for performing the contract.
- The withdrawal of consent must be made possible in the same simple manner as the giving of consent.
- In case the personal data were collected under the consent of the data subject, the data controller - unless required otherwise by law - may process the collected data for the purpose of compliance with the applicable legal requirements without the need to obtain a separate consent, and even after the data subject has withdrawn its consent.

1. Data processing based on the fulfillment of legal obligations

- In case of data processing based on legal obligation, the provisions of the underlying provisions shall be applicable to the scope of data to be processed, the purpose of data processing, the duration of data storage, and the recipients.
- Data processing based on the performance of legal obligations shall be independent of the consent by the data subject, since such data processing is specified by legislation. In this case, prior to the start of the data processing, the data subject must be informed that such data processing is mandatory, and prior to the data processing he must be clearly and in detail informed about any facts related to the processing of his data, in particular about the purpose and legal basis of the data processing, the person entitled to data processing, the duration of the data processing, on the fact that the data controller processes his personal data based on the applicable legal obligation, and about who can have access to the data. The information should include the rights of the data subject and any legal remedies relating to data processing. In case of mandatory data processing, information may be provided by disclosing reference to the legal provision containing the above information.

1. Facilitating the exercise of data subject rights

In the course of all data processing, the Company shall facilitate the exercise of data subject rights.

CHAPTER IV

PROCESSING OF VISITORS' DATA ON THE WEBSITE OF THE COMPANY - INFORMATION ON THE USE OF COOKIES

1. Visitors to the website must be informed on the use of cookies at the website, and the visitors' consent shall be requested in respect of this - with the exception of technically essential session cookies.

2. General information on cookies

2.1. Cookies are small data files sent by the visited website to the visitor's browser (in variable name-value format) to store it, and later to be uploaded by the same website. A cookie may be assigned validity - it can be valid until the browser is closed, or for an indefinite period. At a later stage, it will send these data to the browser server at each HTTP(S) request. In this way, it modifies the data stored on the user's computer.

2.2. The essence of cookies is that due to the nature of web services it is necessary for it to mark a user (e.g. that it entered the site) and to handle it accordingly later. The danger lies in the fact that the user is not always aware of the presence of cookies, and they can be suitable for the website operator or other service providers whose contents are embedded in the site (e.g. Facebook, Google Analytics) - creating a profile of the user, and in this case the contents of the cookie may be considered personal data.

2.3. Types of cookies:

2.3.1. Technically essential session cookies: cookies without which the site simply would not function as intended; they are necessary for identifying the user, for example, to manage login or what items were placed in the basket, etc. This is typically storing session IDs, since other data are stored on the server, which is safer. It has safety implications - if the session cookie's value is not generated appropriately, then there is a risk of session hijacking attack, and therefore it is imperative that these values are generated correctly. In other terminologies all cookies that are erased when you exit the browser are called session cookies (a session is a browser use from entry until exit).

2.3.2. Cookies assisting the use: these are the cookies that remember the user's choices, for example the form of the site the user wishes to see it. These types of cookies actually mean the setting data stored in the specific cookie.

2.3.3. Performance cookies: even though these cookies do not have much to do with "performance", these are the cookies that collect information about the user's behavior within the visited site, the time he spent there, and any clicks. Typically, these third-party applications (e.g. Google Analytics, AdWords, or Yandex.ru cookies). They are suitable for visitor profiling.

However, we would like draw your attention to the fact that some website features or services may not function properly without the use of cookies.

1. Information about the cookies used on the Company's website and the data created during visiting the website

3.1. Scope of data processed during visiting the website: Our Company's website may record and process the following data on the visitor, or the device the visitor used for browsing:

- IP address used by the visitor,
 - browser type,
 - characteristics of the operating system of the device used for browsing (the language set),
 - date of the visit,
 - the visited (sub)page, function or service.
- click

We retain these data for a period of up to 90 days, and use them primarily for inspecting security incidents.

3.2. Cookies used on the website

3.2.1. Technically essential session cookies

Purpose of data processing: ensuring the appropriate operation of the website. These cookies are necessary for the visitors to browse the website smoothly and make full use of its features as well as the services available through the website, such as - among others - in particular remembering the operations performed by the visitors on the specific pages, or identifying the signed-in user during a visit. These cookies only perform data processing during the actual visit of a visitor, and at the end of the session, or when the browser is closed, these type of cookies are automatically deleted from the visitor's computer.

The legal basis of such data processing is Section 13/A(3) of Act CVIII of 2011 on certain issues of electronic commerce and information society services (Electronic Commerce Act), which stipulates that the service provider may – for the purpose of providing the service – process personal data indispensable for providing the service for technical reasons. Should other conditions be identical, the service provider shall select and operate the means applied in the course of providing information society service at all times, so that personal data be processed only if it is absolutely indispensable for providing the service or achieving other objectives stipulated in this Act, and only to the required extent and duration.

3.2.2. Cookies assisting use:

These cookies remember the user's choices, for example the form of the site the user wishes to see it. These types of cookies actually mean the setting data stored in the specific cookie.

The legal basis of the data processing is the consent of the visitor.

The purpose of data processing: Increasing the efficiency of the service, enhancing user experience, making the use of the site more convenient.

These data are stored on the user's computer; the website has simply access to them to recognize its visitors.

3.2.3. Performance cookies:

These cookies collect information about the user's behavior within the visited site, the time he spent there, and any clicks. Typically, these are third-party applications (e.g. Google Analytics, AdWords).

The basis of data processing: the consent of the data subject.

The purpose of data processing: analysis of the website, sending advertising offers.

16. Right to an effective judicial remedy against a controller or processor

1. Rights of the data subject in detail:

1.1. Transparent information and communication, as well as assisting the data subjects in exercising their rights

1.1.1. The data controller shall provide all information regarding the processing of personal data in a concise, transparent, intelligible and easily accessible form, using clear and plain language, in particular for any information addressed specifically to a child. The information must be provided in writing or otherwise - including electronic means where appropriate. At the request of the data subject, verbal information may also be provided, in case the identity of the data subject is verified.

1.1.2. The data controller shall facilitate for the data subjects to exercise their rights.

1.1.3. The data controller shall, without undue delay, but in any event within one month following the receipt of the request, inform the data subject about the measures determined in respect of the request to exercise the rights of the data subject. This period may be extended by two months under the conditions specified in the Regulation, which information must be provided to the data subject.

1.1.4. If the controller does not take action on the request of the data subject, the controller shall inform the data subject without delay and at the latest within one month of receipt of the request of the reasons for not taking action and on the possibility of lodging a complaint with a supervisory authority and seeking a judicial remedy.

1.5. The data controller provides the data and the information on the rights of the data subject free of charge, however, in cases provided for in the Regulation a fee may be charged.

The detailed rules can be found in Article 12 of the Regulation.

2. Right to receive prior information - if personal data are collected from the data subject

2.1. The data subject is entitled to be informed about any facts and information related to the data processing, prior to the commencement of the data processing. In this context, the data subject must be informed about:

1. a) the identity and contact details of the data controller and his representative,
2. b) the contact details of the data protection officer (where applicable),
3. c) the purposes of the processing for which the personal data are intended as well as the legal basis for the processing,
4. d) the legitimate interests of the data controller or of a third party, where the processing is based on pursuing legitimate interests,
5. e) the recipients of personal data - to whom the personal data are disclosed -, or categories of recipients of the data, if any;
6. e) where applicable, the fact that the controller intends to transfer personal data to a third country or international organisation.

2.2. In order to ensure fair and transparent data processing, the data controller shall provide the data subject with the following information:

1. a) the period for which the personal data will be stored, or if that is not possible, the criteria used to determine that period;
2. b) the existence of the right to request from the controller access to and rectification or erasure of personal data or restriction of processing concerning the data subject or to object to processing as well as the right to data portability;
3. c) where the processing is based on the consent of the data subject, the existence of the right to withdraw consent at any time, without affecting the lawfulness of processing based on consent before its withdrawal;
4. d) the right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority;
5. e) whether the provision of personal data is a statutory or contractual requirement, or a requirement necessary to enter into a contract, as well as whether the data subject is obliged to provide the personal data and of the possible consequences of failure to provide such data;
6. f) the existence of automated decision-making, including profiling, and at least in those cases meaningful information about the logic involved, as well as clear information on the significance and the envisaged consequences of such processing for the data subject.

2.3. Where the data controller intends to further process the personal data for a purpose other than that for which the personal data were collected, the data controller shall provide the data subject prior to that further processing with information on that other purpose and with any relevant further information.

The detailed rules for the right to prior information are set out in Article 13 of the Regulation.

3. Informing the data subject, and information to be provided where personal data have not been obtained from the data subject

3.1. Where personal data have not been obtained from the data subject, the data controller must inform the data subject within one week after obtaining the personal data; where personal data are used for contacting the data subject, at the time of first contacting the data subject; if a disclosure to another recipient is envisaged, at the latest when the personal data are first disclosed, the data subject must be informed about the facts and information described in the above Point 2, about the affected categories of personal data, from which source the personal data originate, and if applicable, whether it came from publicly accessible sources.

3.2. Further rules shall be governed by the contents of the above Point 2 (Right to receive prior information).

The detailed rules for providing information are set out in Article 14 of the Regulation.

4. Right of access by the data subject

4.1. The data subject shall have the right to obtain from the controller confirmation as to whether or not personal data concerning him or her are being processed, and, where that is the case, access to the personal data and the information contained in the above Points 2-3. (Article 15 of the Regulation).

4.2. Where personal data are transferred to a third country or to an international organisation, the data subject shall have the right to be informed of the appropriate safeguards pursuant to Article 46 of the Regulation relating to the transfer.

4.3. The data controller shall provide the data subject with one copy of the processed personal data. The data subject may be charged a reasonable administration fee for any additional copies by the data controller.

The detailed rules of the right of access by the data subject can be found in Article 15 of the Regulation.

5. Right to rectification

5.1. The data subject shall be entitled to have the data controller rectify his or her incorrect personal data without delay.

5.2. Taking into account the purposes of the processing, the data subject shall have the right to have incomplete personal data completed, including by means of providing a supplementary statement.

These rules are set out in Article 16 of the Regulation.

6. Right to erasure ("right to be forgotten")

6.1. The data subject shall have the right to obtain from the data controller the erasure of personal data concerning him or her without undue delay and the controller shall have the obligation to erase personal data without undue delay if

1. a) the personal data are no longer necessary in relation to the purposes for which they were collected or otherwise processed;
2. b) the data subject has withdrawn his or her consent on which the data processing is based, and there is no other legal ground for the processing;
3. c) the data subject objects to the data processing, and there is no priority legitimate reason for the data processing,
4. d) the personal data have been unlawfully processed;
5. e) the personal data have to be erased for compliance with a legal obligation in Union or Member State law to which the data controller is subject;
6. f) the personal data have been collected in relation to the offer of information society services.

6.2. The right to erasure may not be exercised if the data processing is required

1. a) for exercising the right of freedom of expression and information;
2. b) for compliance with a legal obligation which requires processing by Union or Member State law or for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the data controller;
3. c) for reasons of public interest in the area of public health;
4. d) for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes, in so far as the right to erasure is likely to render impossible or seriously impair the achievement of the objectives of that processing; or
5. e) for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims.

The detailed rules of the right to erasure are set out in Article 17 of the Regulation.

7. Right to restriction of processing

7.1. Where data processing has been restricted, such personal data shall, with the exception of storage, only be processed with your consent or for the establishment, exercise or defense of your legal claims or for the protection of the rights of another natural or legal person or for reasons of important public interest of the Union or of a Member State.

7.2. The data subject shall have the right to obtain from the data controller restriction of data processing where one of the following applies:

1. a) accuracy of the personal data is contested by the data subject, for a period enabling the data controller to verify the accuracy of the personal data;
2. b) the processing is unlawful and the data subject opposes the erasure of the personal data and requests the restriction of their use instead;
3. c) the data controller no longer needs the personal data for the purposes of the processing, but they are required by the data subject for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims; or
4. d) the data subject has objected to data processing; in this case such restriction shall be valid for a period it is determined whether the legitimate grounds of the data controller override those of the data subject.

7.3. The data subject shall be informed before the restriction of processing is lifted.

These relevant rules are set out in Article 18 of the Regulation.

8. Notification obligation regarding rectification or erasure of personal data or restriction of processing

The data controller shall inform each recipient of any rectification, erasure or restriction, whom or which the personal data have been disclosed to, unless this proves impossible or involves a disproportionate effort. On request, the data controller shall inform the data subject of these recipients.

These rules can be found in Article 19 of the Regulation.

9. Right to data portability

9.1. Under the conditions specified in the Regulation, the data subject shall have the right to receive the personal data concerning him or her, which he or she has provided to a controller, in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format and have the right to transmit those data to another controller without hindrance from the controller to which the personal data have been provided, where

1. a) the processing is based on consent or on a contract; and
2. b) the processing is carried out by automated means.

9.2. The data subject shall be entitled to request the direct transfer of the personal data between the data controllers.

9.3. Exercising the right to data transfer may not infringe Article 17 of the Regulation (Right to erasure ("right to be forgotten")). Right to data portability shall not be exercised if the data processing is required for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the data controller. This right shall not adversely affect the rights and freedoms of others.

The detailed rules can be found in Article 20 of the Regulation.

10. Right to object

10.1. The data subject has the right to object, on grounds relating to his or her particular situation, at any time to the processing of personal data concerning him or her for public interest or for exercising public authority (Section (1) e) of Article 6), or for the purposes of legitimate interests (Point f) of Article 6), including profiling. In this case the data controller may not continue to process the personal data, except where the data controller demonstrates compelling legitimate grounds for the processing which override the interests, rights, and freedoms of the data subject, or are needed for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims.

10.2. Where personal data are processed for direct marketing purposes, the data subject shall have the right to object at any time to processing of personal data concerning him or her for such marketing, which includes profiling to the extent that it is related to such direct marketing. Where the data subject objects to processing for direct marketing purposes, the personal data shall no longer be processed for such purposes.

10.3. At the latest at the time of the first communication with the data subject, the rights shall be explicitly brought to the attention of the data subject and shall be presented clearly and separately from any other information.

10.4. The data subject may exercise his or her right to protest via automated devices based on technical specifications as well.

10.5. Where personal data are processed for scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes, the data subject, on grounds relating to his or her particular situation, shall have the right to object to the processing of personal data concerning him or her, unless the processing is necessary for the performance of a task carried out for reasons of public interest.

The relevant rules are set out in Article 21 of the Regulation.

11. Automated individual decision-making, including profiling

11.1. The data subject shall have the right not to be subject to a decision based solely on automated processing, including profiling, which produces legal effects concerning him or her or similarly significantly affects him or her.

11.2. This right may not be exercised, if the decision:

1. a) is necessary for entering into, or performance of, a contract between the data subject and a data controller;
2. b) is authorised by Union or Member State law to which the data controller is subject and which also lays down suitable measures to safeguard the data subject's rights and freedoms and legitimate interests; or
3. c) is based on the data subject's explicit consent.

11.3. In the cases referred to in Points a) and c) above, the data controller shall implement suitable measures to safeguard the data subject's rights and freedoms and legitimate interests, at least the right to obtain human intervention on the part of the controller, to express his or her point of view and to contest the decision.

Further rules are set out in Article 22 of the Regulation.

12. Restrictions

Union or Member State law to which the data controller or data processor is subject may restrict by way of a legislative measure the scope of the obligations and rights (Articles 12 to 22 and Article 34, as well as Article 5), when such a restriction respects the essence of the fundamental rights and freedoms.

The conditions of such restrictions are set out in Article 23 of the Regulation.

13. Communication of a personal data breach to the data subject

13.1. When the personal data breach is likely to result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons, the data controller shall communicate the personal data breach to the data subject without undue delay. Such information shall describe in clear and plain language the nature of the personal data breach and contain at least the following:

1. a) the name and contact details of the data protection officer or other contact point where more information can be obtained;
1. b) description of the likely consequences of the personal data breach;
2. c) description of the measures taken or proposed to be taken by the data controller to address the personal data breach, including, where appropriate, measures to mitigate its possible adverse effects.

13.2. Informing the data subject shall not be required if any of the following conditions are met:

1. a) the data controller has implemented appropriate technical and organisational protection measures, and those measures were applied to the personal data affected by the personal data breach, in particular those that render the personal data unintelligible to any person who is not authorised to access it, such as encryption;
2. b) the data controller took subsequent measures following the personal data breach which ensure that the high risk to the rights and freedoms of the data subjects is no longer likely to materialise;
3. c) the information would involve disproportionate effort. In such cases, there shall instead be a public communication or similar measure whereby the data subjects are informed in an equally effective manner.

Further rules are set out in Article 34 of the Regulation.

14. Right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority (right to supervisory judicial remedy)

The data subject has the right to lodge a complaint to a supervisory authority - in particular in the European Member State of his or her habitual place of stay, place of work or the place of the alleged infringement - in case the data subject believes that the processing of his or her personal data violates the Regulation. The supervisory authority with which the complaint has been lodged shall inform the complainant on the progress and the outcome of the complaint including the possibility of a judicial remedy.

These rules are set out in Article 77 of the Regulation.

15. Right to an effective judicial remedy against a supervisory authority

15.1. Without prejudice to any other administrative or non-judicial remedy, each natural or legal person shall have the right to an effective judicial remedy against a legally binding decision of a supervisory authority concerning him or her.

15.2. Without prejudice to any other administrative or non-judicial remedy, each data subject shall have the right to an effective judicial remedy where the supervisory authority which is competent does not handle a complaint or does not inform the data subject within three months on the progress or outcome of the complaint lodged.

15.3. Proceedings against a supervisory authority shall be brought before the courts of the Member State where the supervisory authority is established.

15.4. Where proceedings are brought against a decision of a supervisory authority which was preceded by an opinion or a decision of the Board in the consistency mechanism, the supervisory authority shall forward that opinion or decision to the court.

These rules are set out in Article 78 of the Regulation.

16. Right to an effective judicial remedy against a controller or processor

16.1. Without prejudice to any available administrative or non-judicial remedy, including the right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority, each data subject shall have the right to an effective judicial remedy where he or she considers that his or her rights under this Regulation have been infringed as a result of the processing of his or her personal data in non-compliance with this Regulation.

16.2. Proceedings against a data controller or a data processor shall be brought before the courts of the Member State where the data controller or data processor has an establishment. Alternatively, such proceedings may be brought before the courts of the Member State where the data subject has his or her habitual residence, unless the data controller or data processor is a public authority of a Member State acting in the exercise of its public powers.

These rules are set out in Article 79 of the Regulation.
